Understanding Hair Thinning and Hair Loss

Hair thinning can be influenced by several factors, including:

- Hormonal changes
- Stress
- Genetics
- Postpartum recovery
- PCOS
- Perimenopause

It often begins gradually, with signs such as:

- More strands appearing in the shower drain
- Extra hair on your brush
- A thinner-feeling ponytail

One of the major causes of hair thinning is DHT (dihydrotestosterone). When DHT builds up on the scalp, it can shrink hair follicles over time. As follicles become smaller, each new strand may grow thinner, shorter, and weaker until growth slows significantly.

At the same time:

- Scalp inflammation may increase
- Blood circulation can decrease
- Nutrient delivery to the roots becomes limited

This may result in:

- Increased shedding
- Sparse areas around the crown, edges, and hairline
- Reduced overall hair density

Key Ingredients in Roota Hair Growth Serum

Rosemary Oil – Natural DHT Support

Rosemary oil is commonly used to help reduce excess DHT buildup on the scalp while supporting circulation and stimulating hair follicles.

Some studies suggest rosemary oil may provide benefits similar to 2% minoxidil without severe irritation.

Biotin (Vitamin B7)

Biotin supports keratin production, helping strengthen hair structure and reduce breakage.

Caffeine – Microcirculation Booster

Topical caffeine may help increase blood flow around hair follicles, assisting nutrient and oxygen delivery to the scalp.

Peptides

Peptides may help:

- Strengthen follicles
- Extend the hair growth cycle
- Support collagen and elastin production

This can contribute to improved hair density over time.

Redensyl® & AnaGain™

These clinically tested ingredients are designed to support natural hair growth by targeting hair follicle activity.

According to the manufacturer, they may help improve hair density within 12 weeks of consistent use.

Who Might Not Benefit?

Roota is not an overnight solution.

If hair loss is caused by:

- Autoimmune conditions
- Severe nutritional deficiencies

A topical serum alone may not fully address the issue. In such cases, consulting a healthcare professional is recommended.
